

What careers can my subject lead to?

Business

Economics and Business students typically have good commercial awareness, one of the qualities highly sought after by recruiters. What is more, they are able to effectively apply their knowledge of industries to the job.

Popular areas of employment for Business and Management graduates include business, HR, finance, marketing, PR and sales. Careers in consulting are another option. Consultants can specialise in a range of fields, including strategic consulting, IT consulting, HR consulting and business process management.

There is strong demand for Economics graduates for financial and business roles, and as a result they are particularly well placed to move into professional level employment within a short time after finishing their degrees.

Specific skills:

- analytical ability;
- communication skills;
- understanding figures;
- problem solving;
- ability to think logically;
- presentation skills;
- report writing skills;
- Evaluating skills.

Business Studies Apprenticeships: A subject snapshot guide for teachers

<https://amazingapprenticeships.com/app/uploads/2020/01/NAW2020-Business-Studies-Subject-Snapshot.pdf>