Who is Going to Baker Street?

Five taxi drivers are called to a restaurant to pick up five fares. On arrival they find that their passengers are incoherent and the worse for drink. The drivers are unable to determine who is who and who is going where? They would be grateful for your help.

Fortunately, each man has a different first and last name, a different profession, they live in different streets and their wives have different first names.

We have collected several facts from the passengers, and it is your task to determine the answers to the questions below.

Questions
